BY H. H. FRY.

JEW YORK, April 22.-Although defeat continues to be the portion of the Nationals, who yesterday assimilated their third straight reverse when the Yankees copped, 1-0, Manager Milan feels greatly encouraged over the fact that he got a splendidly pitched game from Tom Phillips and now is looking forward to the day his hirelings will combine effective hurling with an adequate defense. When a victory will be credited to them, unless the sticksmiths all take an afternoon off, or the umpires figure a little too prominently in the proceedings, as Tommy Connolly did in the second contest at

When a flinger holds the slugging. Hugmen to five hits scattered over as many innings he is performing in a highly meritorious manner. This is what Phillips did. The New Orleans acquisition had perfect control, issuing nary a pass, and his sharp-breaking curves had the Yanks all crossed up. His work stood out like a beacon in a storm and furnishes a ray of sunshine for Zeb, who now knows he has at least one boxman who can be depended upon.

Milan this morning sprung an innovation by ordering everybody up to his room for skull practice, and announcing it would be a part of the daily routine while en tour. At these sessions plans to rectify faults developed on the field are discussed and tactics for contests ahead discussed. In this instance the slump of the team and the reasons for it was the principal topic. What transpired behind the closed doors was not divulged, but it was learned in a roundabout way that Pat Gharrity occupied the center of the stage and gave the e center of the stage and gave the ys a verbal ripping that should prove tive. blooey went all chance of tying up the game.

A correct decision would have put two on with one out, instead of two out and a runner on first, so that Peck's intentional pass would have filled the bags. This inning was about the only one in which the Griffs looked dangerous, as Shawkey had almost perfect control and was fooling the batters with a wide curve that carried speed with it.

Fewster paved the way for New York's tally in the opener by slamming a liner to left, just a foot inside, and it went for two bases. Fewster fashed to third as Harris tossed out Eater. McMillan then hit a hard one at La Motte that he gathered in nicely. Bob had plenty of time to flag McMillan, but his throw sailed over Judge's head and Fewster, of course, walked home. Weather Has Been Worse.

Mike said that back in 1905, when Griff had the New York team, Cy Young held the Highlanders to one hit, beating Chesbro, 5 to 0, and that it was snowing throughout the contest.

Stan Harris pulled off one of the greatest stops seen at the Polo Grounds for several seasons in the lifth inning. With one down, Scott doubled to left and took third as Phillips tossed out Schang. Shawkey followed with a screeming grounder toward center that was a foot to the right of the second bag. Harris dashed over, speared the ball with his gloved hand, turned backward and then make a long but accurate throw to Judge, nipping Shawkey and preventing a run. The spectators cheered the play for several minutes and made Stan doff his cap as he came into the dugout.

Eddie Gharrity finally has found his true throwing form. The clever way he cut down the speedy Fewster, trying to steal in the second, stopped the Yankees from taking any liberties on Eddie for the rest of the game. He headed off Fewster by at least two yards, and the Yank had a good start at that.

Earl Smith jumped into the spot-light in the fourth, when he caught Plpp's line fly so close to the ground that his hands were on the short grass, and then doubled up Baker, who had been on third and had gone home under the impression that the ball had not been caught. It was a "boner" on the part of Baker, as there was only one out and he could
